35th Conference on
Our World in Concrete & Structures

25-27 August 2010: Singapore

celebrating the "CORAL" anniversary

INVITATION

2010 is the year the Our World in Concrete and Structures conference series marks its 35th or Coral Anniversary. With the world's coral reefs under threat, it is timely that the theme of OWICS2010 is "The Challenge of the Low Carbon Age". From the view point of concrete and structures, the challenge of the low carbon age serves as a catalyst to the sharing of strategies and best practices and spur further innovations in materials technology, design, construction and management to achieve a built environment that will accommodate our modern and demanding lifestyles whilst ensuring that the ability of future generations to meet their own needs is not compromised. Concrete is the construction material of choice around the world and looks set maintain its pole position in the low carbon age. No one can say for sure what the future will bring but we know that change will come. Speculations by industry leaders on what the future will bring seem to indicate that the next 50 years of change will be equivalent to the changes seen in the last 400 years! Some of the changes include streamlining of processes in concrete production, delivery and quality management, a quantum jump in skill requirements of concrete practitioners across the whole value chain, doubling or tripling service life of built infrastructure and components, use of a new generation of construction materials and the concrete industry meeting market demands while using environmentally responsible practices which minimize emissions, waste and consumption of raw materials and energy..

We invite original papers of relevance to this theme and look forward to your active participation.

Dr C T Tam, Conference Chairman
